Lance Morrison
Sequence
June 2 - July 2, 2005

Announcing Lance Morrison's exhibit of new oil paintings entitled " Sequence." This body of work places the hummingbird in a subtle atmospheric space. Morrison's minimal and translucent paintings are created for a patient audience. The hummingbird serves as an entry point for the observer- allowing the painting to become a reflection of its audience's personal associations. The hummingbird's stillness is both static and kinetic, embodying the complexity of movement in Morrison's work. These paintings have a direct and open simplicity, creating a dialogue of quiet differences.

Lance Morrison received his M.F.A. from University of California, Santa Barbara in 1994 where he was awarded the William Dole Memorial Graduate Fellowship. His work is held in both private and public collections throughout the US. He currently lives in Portland, Oregon. This will be his second solo exhibit at the Dolby Chadwick Gallery.
